February was a choppy month for equity markets, with investors digesting results season and unpredictable policy announcements out of the Trump administration.

While the RBA's decision to cut interest rates by 0.25% early in the month provided some support to the ASX, investor confidence faded through the second half of February on the back of mixed economic data out of the US, evolving global trade policy and rising geopolitical tensions. Volatility around results announcements was high with the number of ASX 200 companies with 12-month forward consensus EPS downgrades (84) outnumbering companies with upgrades (70). Market multiples were elevated leading into reporting season, and any perception of a disappointment (whether in the result or outlook) resulted in significant share price weakness on the day.

We continue to assess further investment opportunities, with volatility and a market pullback providing potentially interesting buying windows.

Key Investment Updates

February saw results announcements from Lendlease (-5.1%), Ingenia Communities (-1.6%), Lifestyle Communities (-18.9%) and Baby Bunting (-2.9%).

- Both Ingenia and Baby Bunting had provided trading updates in the lead up to reporting, so there were limited surprises in their results. We were pleased to see both businesses continuing to execute on their articulated strategies, with turnaround efforts starting to produce results
- Lifestyle Communities traded down significantly following release of its half year results, with the Victorian property market continuing to face challenges. The stock had rallied through January and leading into the result and the decisive steps taken to shore up the balance sheet, while necessary, were not enough to satisfy investors. We expect a continued rocky path for LIC over the near term, but retain conviction in the underlying megatrends supporting the land lease sector over the long term. We see a significant re-rate opportunity with multiple catalysts over the next 6-12 months in addition to an improving residential property market backdrop.
- Sigma (+2.4%) completed its merger with Chemist Warehouse during the month, with the next catalyst for the stock its anticipated inclusion in major equity indices in late March
- Lendlease's 1H FY25 result was consistent with company guidance (albeit at the low end of the 17-20 cps range) and the company reaffirmed full-year EPS guidance of 54-62 cents. The financial performance of the core business (excluding construction) was pleasing, and management is doing a good job executing the non-core asset sales required to de-lever the balance sheet, execute a buy-back and re-stock the Australian development pipeline. Understandably, the market is waiting to see further progress on asset sales.
- GrainCorp (-7.8%) provided FY25 guidance at its AGM mid-month which was below consensus expectations and the stock traded down as a result. The company has commenced a $50m buyback and we believe there is more scope for capital management with the balance sheet in a strong position with core cast of $337m as at 30 September 2024

We are pleased with the returns delivered to date and anticipate future strong performance of our investee companies as the outcomes of our active engagement strategy continue to play out<sup>3</sup>.
